KOLORO
ALPACA & COTTON

FASHION • QUALITY • SUSTAINABILITY

Koloro was born in 2012 with the purpose of bringing to the world the valued Peruvian textiles made with the most exclusive and soft natural fibers of hair from alpaca, baby alpaca and organic cotton.

Clothes convey the identity of the Peruvian culture and the richness of its resources.

At Koloro we seek to have a positive social impact, we work hand by hand with communities of textile women, ensure the fair trade throughout the value chain, the care for the alpaca and reject any form of abuse towards it.

TO THE INTERNATIONAL CONQUEST

2012

Since our beginning in 2012, the good work done in the company has allowed us to obtain several recognitions. Which have been our first showcase to achieve one of our greatest goals. Expand and go out to conquer international markets. So we started in Japan, after a month of sending our first samples, the first considerable order of garments is made.

2013

For 2013 with the Japanese market more consolidated, the company begins to participate in international fairs in order to conquer more markets. This becomes another great achievement, with more joys and work we start to export to new markets such as Germany and the United States.

2015

In 2015, our work continues to deliver. The effort of the entire production chain continues to grow and become more solid. Our presence in international fairs such as trade missions give again fruits. So much so that it is possible to export to the most important fashion markets such as France (Paris) and England (London).

We firmly believe in being a reference of Andean design art for the fashion, sustainable and friendly to the planet. This is how our ancestors believed and worked, and that is how we will continue to do so.

ALPACA,
Why?

Alpacas are sociable creatures, one of the most beautiful camelids in South America, native of the Peruvian Andes where they have been domesticated by the Incas 6000 years ago, 95% of the world's population of alpacas are found in the Peruvian regions of the South of the Peru.

They are raised at altitudes that vary from 3,500 to more than 4,500 meters above sea level, withstand a temperature that varies from -100C to 300C. The fiber of the alpaca is delicate and resistant reserved, does not retain water (in winter it helps to conserve heat), it can resist solar radiation (in summer it feels cool). It has being described as stronger than mohair, finer than cashmere, softer than silk and cotton, warmer than goose.

They come in a rainbow of 22 natural hues recommended by the textile industries, in addition to the blends that can be made with them.

Koloro in his vision of producing and exporting the finest Peruvian Alpaca fiber transformed into sweater, jackets, capes, cardigans, scarves, hats, gloves and other accessories. Achieving very durable easy care garments, saving for people and greater care for our environment.

Personality and originality, these are the main characteristics of Andean art and crafts. With different styles, depending on the locality, the art and the tradition whose elaboration techniques have passed from generation to generation since pre-Hispanic times, and that today make known the richness of our people. The straw hand weaving technique is especially from the northern part of Peru.
